

Proposed expansions for Islamic law in 340 Law and related changes: Draft for comment by September 15, 2012

As noted in earlier discussion papers and in 025.431: The Dewey blog, we have been working with Bibliotheca Alexandrina (BA) (http://www.bibalex.org/Home/Default\_EN.aspx), home of the Arabic DDC translation team, on expansions and revisions for Islam. Iman Khairy (formerly at BA) and Ossama Mahmoud have been especially helpful.

In this proposal, we focus on expansions for Islamic law in 340 Law—and on a few topics that came to our attention because of our work on Islamic law, especially religious activities and religious groups in 341 Law of nations and 342 Constitutional law.

We seek comments on the draft:

- Does the proposed draft provide a general framework that can be used for organization of and access to diverse collections throughout the world?
- Can you help us improve the English descriptions for Arabic terms?
- Do the Relative Index entries provide appropriate access to the development?

Please send your comments by September 15, 2012.

340.59 Islamic law

At 340.59 we have expanded for general topics of Islamic law, roughly following recommendations for expansion from the BA team. We have cut back from what the BA team proposed where we could not find sufficient literary warrant.

Works on specific branches and topics of Islamic law are classed in 342–347, not 340.59. Comprehensive collections of and treatises on law not associated with a specific jurisdiction are classed in 340.592, but comprehensive collections of and treatises on law associated with a specific jurisdiction are classed in 348–349.

We have provided for schools of Islamic law with modified notation 01 from Table 1: 340.59018 Schools of law. Notation from 297.14018 Schools of law is used to build specific numbers, e.g., Islamic law according to Ḥanafī school 340.5901811.

The expansion at 297.14018 Schools of law (under 297.14 Religious and ceremonial laws and decisions) has been published in WebDewey and in 200 Religion Class; it can be found also as part of a PDF file at http://www.oclc.org/us/en/dewey/updates/ddc23/297\_20120501\_ddc23.pdf

There is a note about the expansion in 025.431: The Dewey blog at <http://ddc.typepad.com/025431/2012/05/updates-selected-topics-in-2971-8-islam.html>

342–347 General patterns for specific branches and topics of Islamic law

The current general pattern for specific branches and topics of Islamic law is given in a scatter class–elsewhere note at 340.5 Legal systems: “Class a specific subject in specific systems of law with the subject in 341–347, e.g., juristic persons in Islamic law 346.167013. . . .” The example number is built using 346.1 Private law in socioeconomic regions plus 6 from notation T2—176 Regions where specific religions predominate plus 7 from 297 for Islam plus 013 from 346.013 Capacity and status of persons. We have retained that general pattern. For the rest of this section, we’ll use 34X.167 as a shorthand way to describe the general pattern in 342–347 for specific branches of Islamic law not limited to a specific jurisdiction. We have also retained the standard preference for T2—4–9 over T2—1; hence Islamic law of a specific jurisdiction is classed with law of the jurisdiction, e.g., private Islamic law of Islamic Republic of Iran 346.55, juristic persons in Islamic law of Islamic Republic of Iran 346.55013.

What do we propose to change about 34X.167? We have added notes to make clear that 34X.167 can be used both for Islamic law as a system of law and for law of Islamic countries. We have provided for optional numbers 34X.1671–34X.1673 that expand 34X.167 to indicate a specific school of law, using notation from subdivisions of 297.14018 Schools of law. Specifically, the add instructions for the optional numbers begin with the standard number 34X.167 for Islamic law, built as described above using 7 from 297 for Islam, and prescribe adding the numbers following 297.14018 in notation 297.140181–297.140183, e.g., a branch of Islamic law according to Ḥanafī school 34X.16711. Using that optional notation, it is also possible to specify Sunnite schools in general (34X.1671) or Shiite schools in general (34X.1672), in addition to specific schools of law.

There is a potential problem with this approach. The add instruction at T2—1762–1769 Other religions, which is used to build the number for regions where Islam predominates, provides for adding “the numbers following 29 in 292–299” without specifying that only the 7 from 297 should be added. That makes it theoretically possible to build a number using subdivisions of 297.8 Islamic sects and reform movements, for example using 781 from 297.81 Sunnites to specify regions where Sunnites predominate (T2—176781). From that number one could possibly build a law number 34X.16781 Regions where Sunnites predominate; however, we can find no evidence that that possibility has been used for building law numbers. Similarly, one might theoretically use 4 from 297.4 Sufism (Islamic mysticism) to build a law number 34X.1674 Regions where Sufism predominates; again, we can find no evidence of that. Prior to DDC 22, it was not possible to add notation from 297.8 in Table 2; the notation for regions where Islam predominates was built using notation from Table 7 that could not be subdivided (T7—2971 Islam). In DDC 22 at T2—1762–1769 Other religions is the revision note: “Notation 292–299 replaces notation 292–299 from Table 7 with the result that many numbers have been reused with new meanings.”

What do we propose to solve the potential problem? We have bracketed 34X[.1678] Regions where specific sects and movements of Islam predominate and have made a technical discontinuation from 34X[.1678] to 34X.167. Allowing Islamic law to be subdivided using notation both from subdivisions of 297.8 Islamic sects and reform movements and from 297.14018 Schools of law would result in dual provision. We believe that libraries needing specificity should use the optional provisions for schools of law.

The optional number 34X.1674 Mixed schools of Islamic law and comparative treatment is the same as if it had been built with 297.140184. This number has been given special treatment because of the discontinuation note: “Use of this number for regions where Sufism predominates discontinued; class in 34X.167.”

348 Laws, regulations, cases

This part of the law schedule works best for specific jurisdictions. We do not find 348.167 being used, and we cannot imagine how it might be used, except possibly for general collections of fatwas. We think that general collections of fatwas can more usefully be placed near the discussion of the fatwa in a subdivision of 340.592 Islamic substantive law. We have inserted a relocation note in the add instruction at 348.1: “however, laws, regulations, cases of regions where Islam predominates relocated from 348.167 to 340.592.”

We have added a new subdivision of 348 (348.06 Other advisory opinions) and added notes to make clear that notation 06 derived from 348.06 can be used under 348.3–348.9 for fatwas from a specific jurisdiction, e.g., fatwas from Indonesia 348.59806.

349 Law of specific jurisdictions, areas, socioeconomic regions, regional intergovernmental organizations

Under 349 Law of specific jurisdictions, areas, socioeconomic regions, regional intergovernmental organizations, at 349.1 Law of specific socioeconomic regions, the usual add instruction ends: “however, for Islamic law, see 340.59.” We are retaining that exception; treatises on the whole of Islamic law, not limited to a specific jurisdiction, remain in 340.59. Treatises on the whole of Islamic law in a specific jurisdiction, however, are classed in 349, e.g., treatises on the whole Islamic law of the Islamic Republic of Iran 349.55.

341 Law of nations

For 341 Law of nations, where there is no 341.1+ provision for socioeconomic regions, we have modified subdivisions of Table 1 notation 09 History, geographic treatment, biography in order to make the provisions for Islamic law as similar as possible in 341 and in 342–347. There is not a large literary warrant for Islamic law under 341 Law of nations, but there is enough to make that effort worthwhile. We have added the note “Class here law of nations from the viewpoint of Islamic law” to 341.091767 Regions where Islam predominates (number built with 341 Law of nations plus T1—091Areas, regions, places in general plus 76 from T2—176 Regions where specific religions predominate plus 7 from 297 for Islam). We have provided the optional numbers 341.0917671–.0917673 Specific schools of Islamic law, so that, for example, 341.09176711 can be used to mean law of nations from the viewpoint of the Ḥanafī school. We have also given a discontinuation note for regions where Sufism predominates to the optional number 341.0917674 Mixed schools and comparative treatment, and we have discontinued 341[.0917678] Regions where specific sects and movements of Islam predominate to 341.091767 Regions where Islam predominates. We have made similar changes to notation 09 History, geographic treatment, biography in the add table under 341.2–341.7 Specific topics.

Religious activities and religious groups

We have provided clarification and expansion for the law with respect to religious groups in both constitutional law (342) and law of nations (341). There is substantial literary warrant for legal issues of non-Muslims in Islamic countries and Muslims in non-Islamic countries.

First consider the current pattern in constitutional law:

342.085 Rights and activities of individuals

342.0852 Religious activities

342.087 Groups of people

Changes to these numbers affect also the law of nations numbers built from them:

341.48 Human rights

341.4832 Religious activities

341.485 Rights of specific social groups

We considered providing a subdivision of 342.087 for religious groups (e.g., 342.0874) to be used for comprehensive status/discrimination issues with respect to religious groups, with a reference to 342.0852 for religious activities; however, we were advised—and we agree—that it is better to bring religious activities and religious groups together, not separate them.

We have relocated religious groups from 342.087 Groups of people, where the topic has been in standing room, to 342.0852 Religious activities, broadening 342.0852 to Religious groups [formerly 342.087] and religious activities, with the note: “Subdivisions are added for either or both topics in heading.” We have expanded by adding notation from 230–299 for specific groups and activities.

Providing for people associated with the topics at 211.4–.8 (free thought to atheism) has proved more complicated. We want to synchronize the terminology at 342.08522 and 211.4–.8 and 239.7, and that has led us to propose some changes at 211.4–.8 and 239.2–.9. We prefer “free thought” over “rationalism” as the more current term at 211.4, and have put rationalism in a class—here note there. We have retained “Atheism” as the caption for 211.8, and we are proposing “People associated with atheism” as the caption at 342.085222.

We have changed the caption at 239.7 from “Polemics against rationalists, agnostics, apostates, atheists in postapostolic times” to “Polemics against free thought, humanism, secularism, agnosticism, skepticism, atheism in postapostolic times.” The new form better matches the Relative Index as well as 211, since Relative Index terms at 239.7 usually have the form Atheism—Christian polemics. We have made similar changes to captions for other subdivisions of 239. We have dropped “deists, encyclopedists, materialists, scientists” from the including note at 239.7 because they don't have current literary warrant as targets of Christian polemics.

Please see appendix 1 for the revised and parallel entries in the schedules for 211 and 239.

346.064 Nonprofit organizations

We propose a subdivision for "charitable trusts and foundations," one of the topics currently in the including note at 346.064. We have added a note that "Subdivisions are added for either or both topics in heading." In WorldCat, works on the subject in Islamic law commonly have the LCSH "Waqf" (<http://id.loc.gov/authorities/subjects/sh90006168>).
